breakin away

Timid, shy, and scared out of our pants, we all entered our first classroom some 13 years ago. For all of us, those 13 years have been spent with cherished friends growing aimlessly together to come to now. "Now" being somewhat guileless word to describe the tearful goodbyes yet symbolize the beginning of new horizons. Richard Bach once wrote: "Don't be dismayed at goodbyes for goodbyes are necessary to meet again." Probably the hardest part about "breaking away" are the goodbyes and the fear in the realization that we will now be on our own. Enid High has been a vital part in the shaping of our lives. The friends we have made here will be friends forever, or so they seem. It is even fathomable that we will come to realize, at some point throughout the conflicts with our ego, that the teachers that nurtured the growth of our intellect were in fact right more than half of the time, though we swore that we had it all figured out. For those reasons our lives at Enid High School have been special even though we might not realize it. On May 27, we will receive our diplomas and each will begin our own personal quest for success and happiness. Our paths will all be different, yet sometime during the years to come, it seems inevitable that the force bringing us together again will inevitably be the same force that started us together on our journey from the very beginning. Enid High School! Good luck class of '88!

hangin' in there

Two down, and one to go! The junior year is considered to be one of the most treacherous years of high school. ACT, PSAT, and SAT are some of the few tests that are taken by some to prepare for college. Some face the realization that there is only one more year before entering the job market. Hang in there juniors!

me, my date, and mom!

The night held a sense of hysteria in the air. It was Plainsmen Homecoming and all over the city, high school teenagers were getting prepared for this special occasion. Yet, in the timid corners of Joe Sophomore's twisted life, youthful complexes ruled the domain of his happiness. He was simply too nervous.

"My hair looks terrible!" he cried. "Mom, where is my Stud No. 5 cologne? I can't find it anywhere. Do you think a three piece suit is too much for homecoming?"

As Joe finished doing his hair, and confronting all his insecurities about the night which was upon him, he proceeded out the bathroom door, tossing his fifth can of mousse into the trash can. His hair looked good! Hard and shiny, but good. No one but Joe actually knew what he was going through. Yes, the complexes were straining him, but it was now that he would deal with his most terrifying and embarrassing problem. It wasn't his date that was the problem, it was a sure bet she would look good in her hoop skirt prom dress and five pounds of make-up. No, that wasn't it. It wasn't the corsage either. Joe had spent a whole twenty dollars on his plastic daisy masterpiece. It was an even deeper problem.

With time escaping him, Joe hurried out the door grasping his "unique" corsage. Realizing the problem existed inside the doors of his metallic green station wagon, Joe stopped abruptly before opening the door.

Blood rushed to his face as he lost all strength in his legs. Picking himself up slowly, he peered into the window of the car, and there it was. Her eyes were like talons, grasping the heart of his embarrassment. As she began to speak, Joe looked deeply into her throat afraid of her demeaning words. "Come on honey!" Joe's MOM insisted. "If you don't hurry, We are going to be late to pick up Edith, your beautiful date."

After prying poor Edith from the magnet on the dash board that had so viciously captured her braces, Joe and Edith got out of the car to go into the dance. As they walked away, excited about trying those crazy dance steps their parents had taught them in the garage to the sound of The Supremes, Mom's last instructions fell softly into the recepts of Joe's mind.

"Oh, honey." she cried, "Don't forget, I'll be here at 11:00 to pick you up. And remember: Mommy loves you!"

what's hip?

Fashion styles of 1987-1988 school year may be defined as mini skirts Guess jeans, and oversized sweaters. Many fashion statements were expressed from head to toe. For many the mousse went loose! The wilder the hairstyle, the better it came across. Dennis McFadden said, "It's hard to be an individual without being an outcast. I don't try to stand out, (if I do at times), it's just the way I am."

Shoes were chosen from a wide variety of styles. Boots, Keds, and slip-ons were some of the more familiar sights. Friendship bracelets were the latest fad. The bracelets were woven and exchanged by all. No matter how the style was expressed, the style was definitely hip in '88!

just for kicks

Rob Camp shows the precision and foot-work needed for soccer while trying to avoid an attempted tackle by a player from Edmond.

Doug Wade and Quint jump at the Meadowlake show.

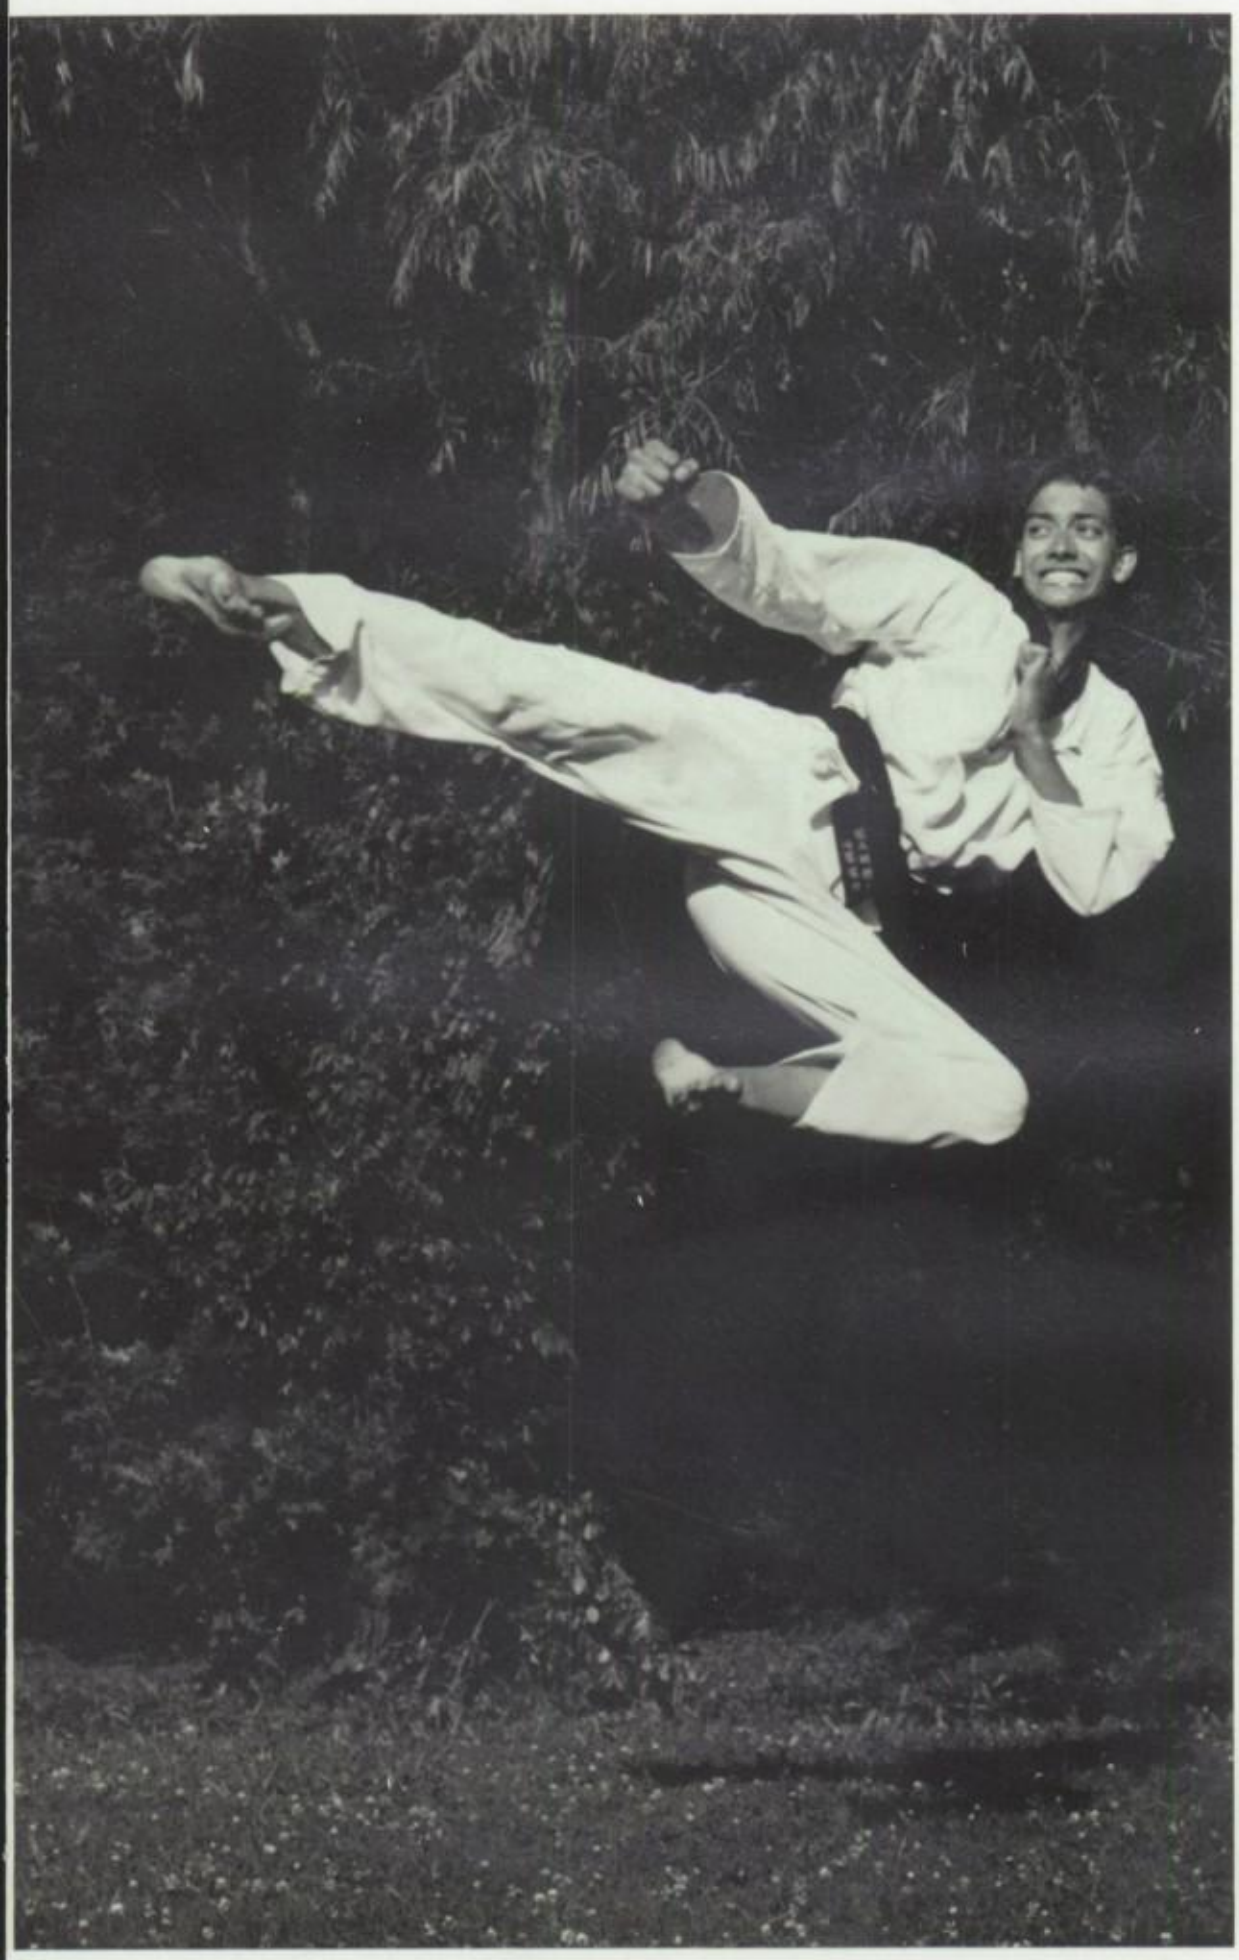
Some students at Enid High participated in extracurricular activities just for kicks. They put in many hours of effort in pursuit of personal gratification. They received no school letter, no school recognition, or any kind of school oriented awards.

Students got a kick out of the martial arts, like Karate and Tang Soo Do. The beauty of this sport is enjoyed by all.

Soccer was another sport favorite pastime for many Enid High students. To be a good soccer player it takes a lot of skill, practice, endurance, and hours of practice.

Also students participated in gymnastics and dancing. Athletic abilities, skills, and most important gracefulness is required to be a success.

Equestrian is an art of riding horseback. Doug Wade said, "Riding horses takes a lot of time and training. I wouldn't trade it for the world!"



Justin Phillips does his Bruce Lee imitation.

Teresa Baker exhibits the balance and grace required for her balance beam routine.

Lisa,

For you, My friend.
I send you a smile
for just being there
By my side when I'm down and showing love that you care.
I send you love for me
for when I was sick or hurt
When I wanted company.
for sending you a rainbow or wanted you to be for saying to me, the world the sun needs the rain for send you the world
I'd send a rainbow to be.
If dreams could come true,
for a friend takes it all then a friend takes it to you.

after hours

A quiet dinner for two at an elegant French restaurant, with BRUCE WILLIS! Moonlighting in the French Riviera with CYBILL SHEPERD! Yes, both of these are exciting ways to spend our time out of school, but do they hardly compare to a fun-filled night moonlighting in Enid, Oklahoma? The answer my friends is . . . (yes, of course, they compare), but that only says that Enid High students spend their extra time in exciting and worthwhile ways. Joe Sophomore spends his weekends with the local bowling league and on Saturdays he likes to spend his time at the "Skatetown," skating aimlessly around the rink pondering all the possibilities of things to do his junior year.

You can see Jimmy Jr., on any weekend night, frequenting all those abandoned oil rigs and all night coin-up laundry mats. You can also find him driving up and down the infamous Van Buran strip not ever getting out of his car, just cruising. Or you may see him pumping endless amounts of quarters into video games and pool tables at the local arcade. Yet, it's our seniors that spend weekends more wisely than all the others, preparing themselves for viable careers and brighter horizons by reading Shakespeare and Cervantes and taking classes at the local university, hardly ever giving into such devilish temptations as partying; or at least that is what I have been told.

Let's not forget the people who actually do spend their time working earnestly to gain an honest wage, moonlighting with french fries and hamburgers, or sacking groceries.

All of these actual depictions of the various and exciting weekends spent by Enid High students, must leave us all pondering one question: Why do we insist on staying? "Golly, gee there's nothing to do in Enid!"

what's happening

This is a very familiar sight in Enid. In the past year Oklahoma has suffered the economy depression. Twenty-eight banks have closed and the population has decreased immensely. The economy is bad, but hopefully in the near future it will be stronger.

Boomer is a bronze statue sculpted by famous Enid resident and 1958 E.H.S. graduate, Harold T. Holden. Holden made the life-size bronze statue which depicts a rider on horseback at full gallop, airing his claim to the boundaries of the land he claimed. This rider represents the pioneers who made the Oklahoma Land Rush of 1893 and who were known as the "Boomers." This monument is in front of the New Cherokee Strip Conference Center in downtown Enid. Ninety-three limited replicas were made to symbolize the land rush of 1893. Because Enid lies in the heart of the Cherokee Strip, where the land rush occurred, we had the honor of having it to our town.

Summerfest is a big event in Enid, America. It is held at Woodring Airport every August. The most exciting activity is the balloon race. It is an event that cannot be missed.

Class of 1988

What is your favorite class? Why?

"My favorite class is contest speech, because it gives me a chance to prove who I can be, and what I can do. Tim Justice"

What is your pet peeve?

"My pet peeve is when I make it to class two seconds after the bell and my teacher insists on counting me tardy! Tom White"

What do you like or dislike about being a senior?

"Being a senior has many fallacies. We're still at home, most still have a curfew, and we're still doing homework! Tom Turner"

For years it seems, we dreamt about our senior year in high school. All of those dreams of grandeur came to an abrupt halt in September as college applications filled our mailboxes and career opportunities baffled our minds. Our senior year is definitely the most special of all of our years in high school. There are many freedoms about being seniors, but there are also many responsibilities. The complexity of what to do after high school relentlessly antagonized the thoughts of many seniors. So it was obvious, in that all its glory, our senior year was as much work as it was fun.

We finished the year with our best foot forward by participating in the traditional graduation activities, and those moments of Baccalaureate and May Fete became nothing but special memories for the class of '88.

honors & awards

What does your experience at Boys State mean to you?

"Most people take our state government for granted. At Boys State I learned what our state government actually does and to deeply appreciate it. Mike Sohn"

What does being a National Merit Semifinalist mean to you?

"Becoming a National Merit Semifinalist provided a sense of accomplishment in academics, even though the reality of it is that I was fortunate enough to do well on a standardized test, in this case the PSAT. Nevertheless, I am honored to have earned this award . . . but it probably won't help me get backstage passes to the U2 concert. Drew Johnson"

What does making All-State Band mean to you?

"Making All-State Band means being one of the best in the state. When you're one of the best, it makes you strive to be "THE best." Debbie Costello"

The 1987-1988 school year was an exciting and memorable year. I would like to thank you, the student body for all the support and enthusiasm which made each activity run so smoothly. I feel that we were able to accomplish a lot this year and have a good time too in the process. Student Council is a lot of work. I really was fortunate to have Christian, Lousia, Brenda, and Brad as officers with me. For without these friends, nothing could have gotten done. I would like to wish the best of luck to next year's Student Council and I hope that 1988 is a successful year for everyone.

Was it that funny Amy Emery?

Your sophomore year, at times, it seemed would never end. The time when the heckling and condescending was absent and the dreams of a better junior year tantalized the imagination seemed far removed. Though at certain moments our sophomore year seemed to be one of the worst experiences of our life, it was, in fact, one of the most beneficial. During the period when emotional growth was essential to the development of our personality, we were tested relentlessly by the perils of growing in a society and environment much different than any we have grown up in before.

In retrospect we can all remember our first few weeks at Enid High School, when deciding upon who we ate lunch with, what group we hung around with, and if we were wearing what was in or not was more important than keeping up with the rigorous academic challenge a high school education presented. Yet in the waning moments of the first quarter we cringed at the idea of explaining the reasons for our "unsatisfactory" grades. Then, as the year progressed, we realized that the seniors we idolized were in fact not much farther along the maturity trail than we were and the thought of being inferior was as ridiculous as conceding to the social mind games that had plagued us in the beginning. In its wholeness, our sophomore year is a very wonderful time in our life, and, upon reflection it is usually remembered as so. Let us not forget all our wonderful memories, or forsake the beautiful lessons we learned. Above all we must always cherish the friends we made for they will be friends forever, and never lose touch with the legacies left behind from our "treacherous" sophomore year.

"The greatest years of my life were spent in high school." Surely every one has heard that statement at least once, if not from their parents than from their teachers. Some teachers enjoyed life at Enid High so much that they decided to build a career around it. A large number of the teachers at Enid High also graduated here. In a quest to discover what it is about Enid High that keeps people coming back, I decided to talk with three teachers about their school years at Enid High.

Mrs. Falls graduated in the 1950's when poodle skirts and saddle oxfords were popular. They had sock hops in the school gym, and dragged up and down Grand and Van Buren for excitement on the weekends. Everyone ate lunch in the cafeteria and D. Bruce Selby was their principal. Assemblies every Friday were the high point of the week. She was an Aquaette and she participated in numerous school plays. Mrs. Falls was crowned Garfield County Fair Queen, which was a high honor. Mrs. Falls says the most memorable event during her high school years was on Class Day when the boys let a snake loose in the Esquire Theater.

In 1971 when Mr. King graduated, Richard Nixon was President and Gene Mauk was the principal at Enid High. Overalls and bell-bottom jeans were considered fashionable and "Star Trek" was a popular television show. Mr. King was the Student Council Vice-President of over 670 seniors, the largest class to graduate from Enid High. He was also a member of the band, and a May Fete escort. His favorite class was history, taught by Dennis Iselin.

The first All-School Musical, "Oklahoma," was presented by Mrs. Chael's senior class in 1974. Mrs. Chael not only performed in it, she also assisted with the choreography. She was involved in many clubs and activities, including the Plainsmenettes Drill Team and Quill Staff. Everyone hung out at a place called Tastee Freeze or went to the show on weekends. Long hair and short skirts were popular, and jeans still weren't part of the school dress code. Mrs. Chael, Mr. McClendon, and Mrs. Zweifel all graduated together at Convention Hall.

What is it that keeps Enid graduates coming back? Perhaps it's the fun times, or the friendships, or the quality education, or maybe it's just a strong desire to teach. Whatever the reason they decided to come back, these Enid High graduates have earned a special place in our hearts.

report card blues

"Everyone told me that my senior year would be the easiest year. That's true, but it's so easy that I really don't try very hard and my grades are lower than ever before." Kathryn Rogers (12)

Report card day, the four times every year when usually normal Plainsmen become unruly, irritable monsters. Everyone is aware of the time before school, once every nine weeks where students enter the report card zone. The zone where emotion is set on overdrive and students have to wear ear plugs to muffle the hair raising screams once they are handed their report cards.

When it comes to report cards, there are basically three types of attitudes: those who love it, those who dread it, and those who just don't care. One can easily tell which category a person falls in. Those who love it come running out of class screaming at the top of their lungs, "I did it . . . Hooray!" Those who dread it come moping out of class. They talk to themselves trying to figure out the best way to hide the cards from their parents as long as possible. However, there's no use in trying, since no matter how hard one tries, one cannot put off giving their report cards to dear old Mom and Pop. Parents have a sixth sense when it comes to report cards. They won't say anything for days on end, and then, out of the blue, they will ask if report cards have come out yet. Stuttering and skipping around the subject will not help either, since they will continue to ask for a report card for the next six months until they get one. Finally, those who just don't care never even received one since they didn't bother to pick theirs up. In addition, there are still people around that report cards don't bother a bit. "It's no big deal, it's just another day, and besides, my mother really loves it," says Dena Ash (11).

Whether you make A's or F's, report cards will always continue to have a variety of opinions.

BOTTOM RIGHT: "You're gonna laugh, well, maybe not, when you see this report card," states Shannon Sons as she breaks the news to her mother over the phone.

What has being a part of FCA done for your social life?

"It has helped me to meet new people in a Christian environment. I think the people involved realize that they don't have to try and fit someone else's norms at FCA. They can be themselves. Jeff Matthews"

What has being a member of the Belles of the Plains meant to you?

"Belles has been so much fun for me because not only have I learned to work well with others in a large group, but within that group I've gained many friends. Shannon Sons"

Has being a member of chorus helped you to gain friends?

"Extremely! I've gained more friends from being a part of chorus than I ever could by being in an English class. The friends I've made in chorus are the friends I'll have forever. Anita Zeiss"

DAYBREAK

Day-Break, which is sponsored by Wheatland Professional Services, Inc., is a unique drug and alcohol prevention program implemented in the Enid Public School System. Mrs. Nan Brim and Mr. Dick Powers are the coordinators for the program which is made up of high school juniors and seniors who volunteer their time and efforts. The program is taught one day a week for six weeks at each Enid grade school. The teens are DCA'd and have to make up their work. Daybreak is an extraordinary service from which both the grade school students and the teen volunteers benefit.

In the beginning, no one truly understood just exactly what being on the yearbook staff was all about. As the months rolled by and deadlines drew near, not only did we begin to understand what it was all about, but we also began to understand the true meanings of the words pressure and responsibility, and for Mr. Giles it was the beginning of gray hair. Finding the right pictures, writing the right captions, working on layouts, proofreading, spending hours in the darkroom, and, at times, pulling the hair out of our own heads, were just a few things with which this year's yearbook staff was faced. One might wonder, "Is being part of the yearbook staff really worth all of that?" My answer is a definite "yes!" There is nothing better than seeing that yearbook for the first time when it's finished. Being on the yearbook staff was a learning experience that I'll never forget. Yearbook wasn't just a class, it was a family working together to create something that will hold for us the thing that time has a tendency to fade, our memories.

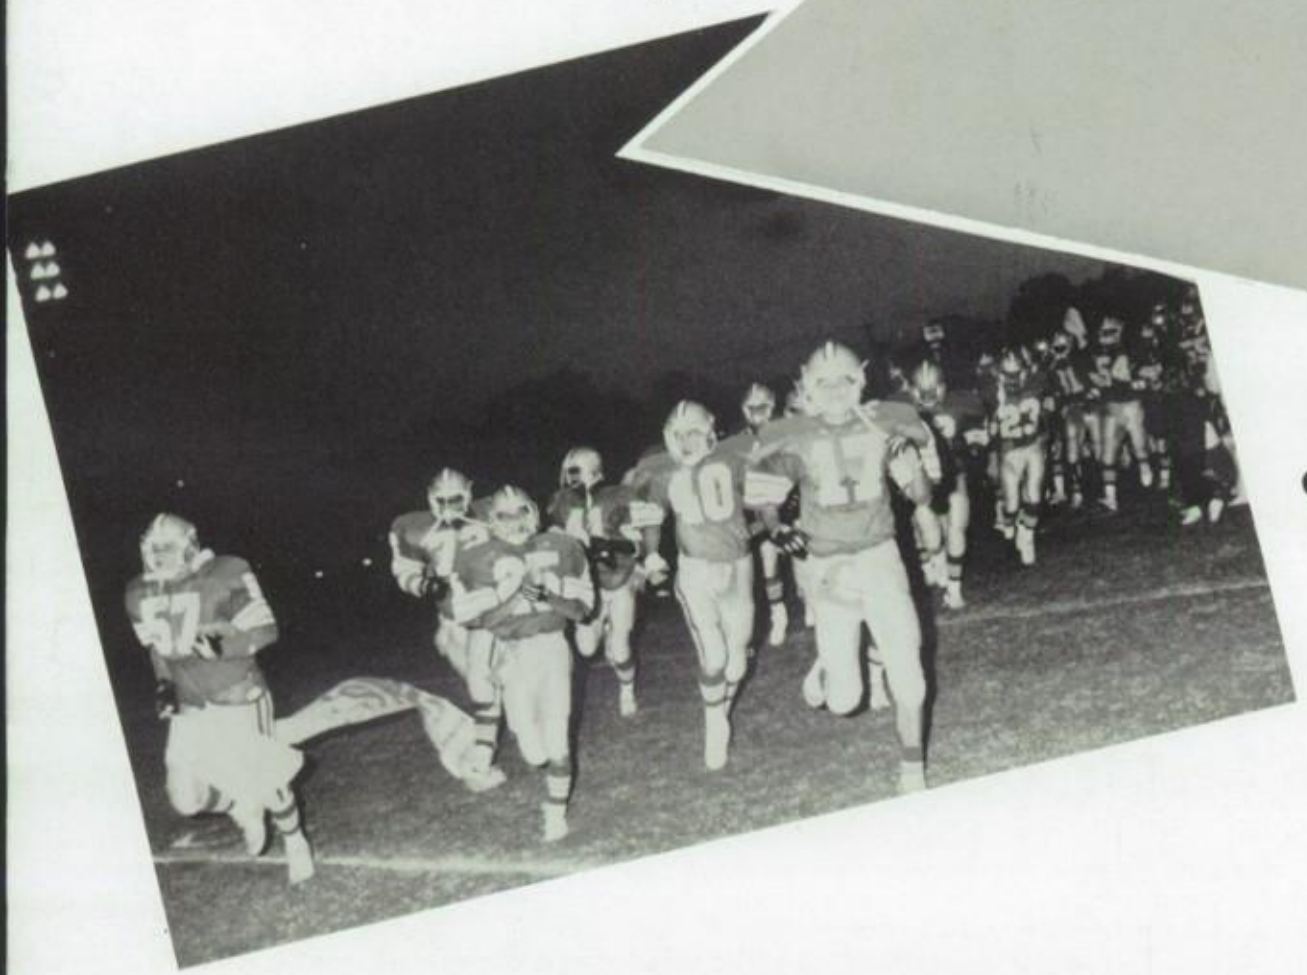
the players



What are the rewards of the efforts you have put into sports?

"The hard work paid off in more ways than just winning. It teaches self-discipline which can be applied to other parts of life. Plus we won state in 1986 in baseball and it's a feeling that can't be duplicated. Mark Spencer"

Why did you decide to play sports?

"Playing sports is something I love to do. It is also a great way to keep in shape, learn great discipline, and meet new friends. Terrance Richardson"

What are the rewards of the efforts you have put into sports?

"The hard work I put into sports throughout my high school years was worth a great deal. Sports helped me to develop physically, to grow as an individual, to understand the importance of team work, and to instill self-discipline. Chad Chancellor"

7-4 a challenging season

As the last seconds ticked off the clock, a less than glorious ending came to the 1987 Plainsmen football season. The ending, a 35-0 loss to Putnam City West, was somewhat ironic when compared to the accomplishments of the Enid High Plainsmen. The Plainsmen qualified for the state play-offs in a thrilling game against John Marshall where the Plainsmen won 21-20. More impressive is the fact that the Plainsmen ranked fourth in the state in total offense with an average of 285 total yards a game. They also ranked fourth in total defense allowing an average of only 162 yards a game. Perhaps the most impressive aspect of the Plainsmen this year was their ability to achieve individual honors and still maintain the closeness that made this football team so special. The individual accomplishments were numerous this year. The Plainsmen registered six All-District and seven All-Conference players. Three of those players: Bobby Rundle, Matt Miller, and John Thomas were nominated for All-State honors. Bobby Rundle was also named Most Valuable Player of the Plainsmen team for 1987 and the Rex Martin award, an award pronouncing the accomplishments of a player both on and off the field with emphasis on such redeeming qualities as leadership and scholarship, was given to Mark Spencer. In retrospect the 1987 season was a huge success; the memories attained shall never be forgotten and the friends made will never be lost. Congratulations Plainsmen for a great season!

"This year's boys team had high expectations, losing only three members from last year's squad and a good group of sophomores coming up. We didn't go as far as we were capable of, but we learned a lot of things about dedication and discipline. The Plainsmen had a 4th place finish at the Conference meet and a 9th at Regionals. Co-Captain Chris Walker received All-Conference Honorable Mention Honors. The girls team had the opposite of the boys coming into the year. With five varsity members gone, Junior Kim Van Donk was the only returning starter. With a lot of hard work, the girls had a 4th place finish at Conference, 6th place at Regionals and a 12th place at the state meet. Kim Van Donk had a 5th place individual finish at the Regional meet." — Craig Brown, Sr. 88

BELOW: Sophomore Stacy Baker has started as a varsity member of the tennis team for two years.
FAR LEFT: Junior Zhawn Stevens was all-state in the 200 individual medley and holds school records in 5 events.
LEFT: Sophomore Greg Kiryakakis went to the National Cross Country meet as a freshman and now runs varsity for the Plainsmen team.

The Juniors and Sophomores of Enid High School showed a lot of hard work, dedication and determination. These qualities were exhibited in every sport throughout the year.

From softball to tennis, Junior and Sophomore athletes enjoyed a year of successes. Even though they were not always on top, they always gave it one hundred percent. Throughout the wins and losses, the spirit of EHS supported the various teams through each meet, run or tournament.

There were many honors achieved by athletes in every sport. Each individual gave a remarkable effort in representing Enid High School. Some even went to state in their sport, and those that did not, held their heads high no matter what the final score. They showed they were winners and proud to be Plainsmen. After all, it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game.

As I look at the Plainsmen basketball team of 1987-1988, I realize that it was a very special team. It was a team that worked hard and diligently, set high goals, and practically lived in the gym. Through all the late night and Christmas vacation practices we developed the kind of friendships that are rare. The times we shared will be the best of our lives, and they will remain within our hearts forever. — Tony Hendrix, Sr. 88

TOP RIGHT: Soph.Tiffany George stretches out to return a forehand.
MIDDLE RIGHT: Sr. Louisa McCune fires a forehand return shot to her opponent.

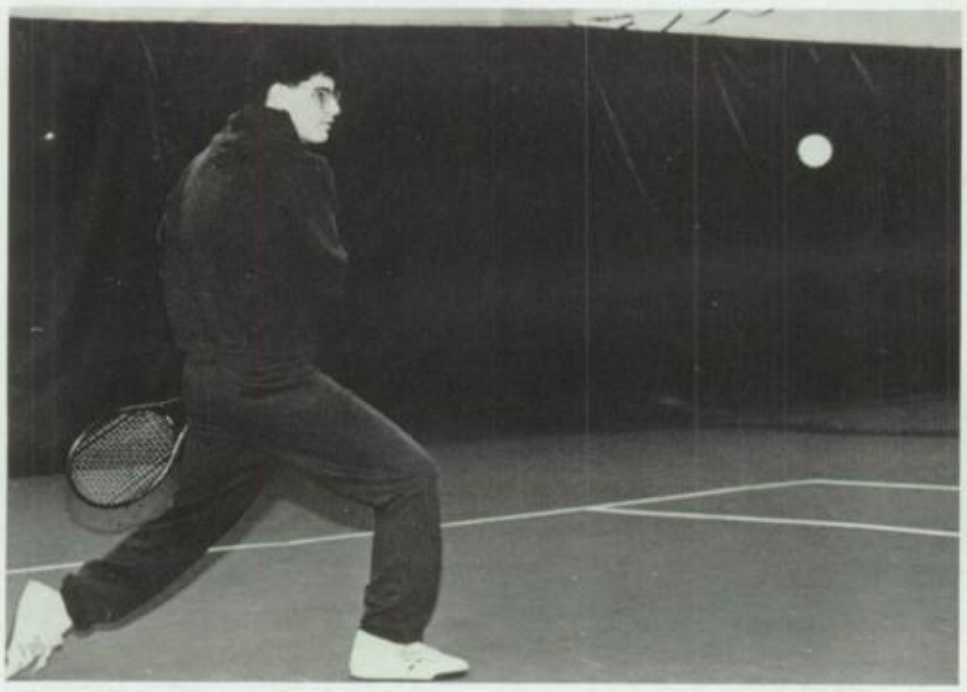
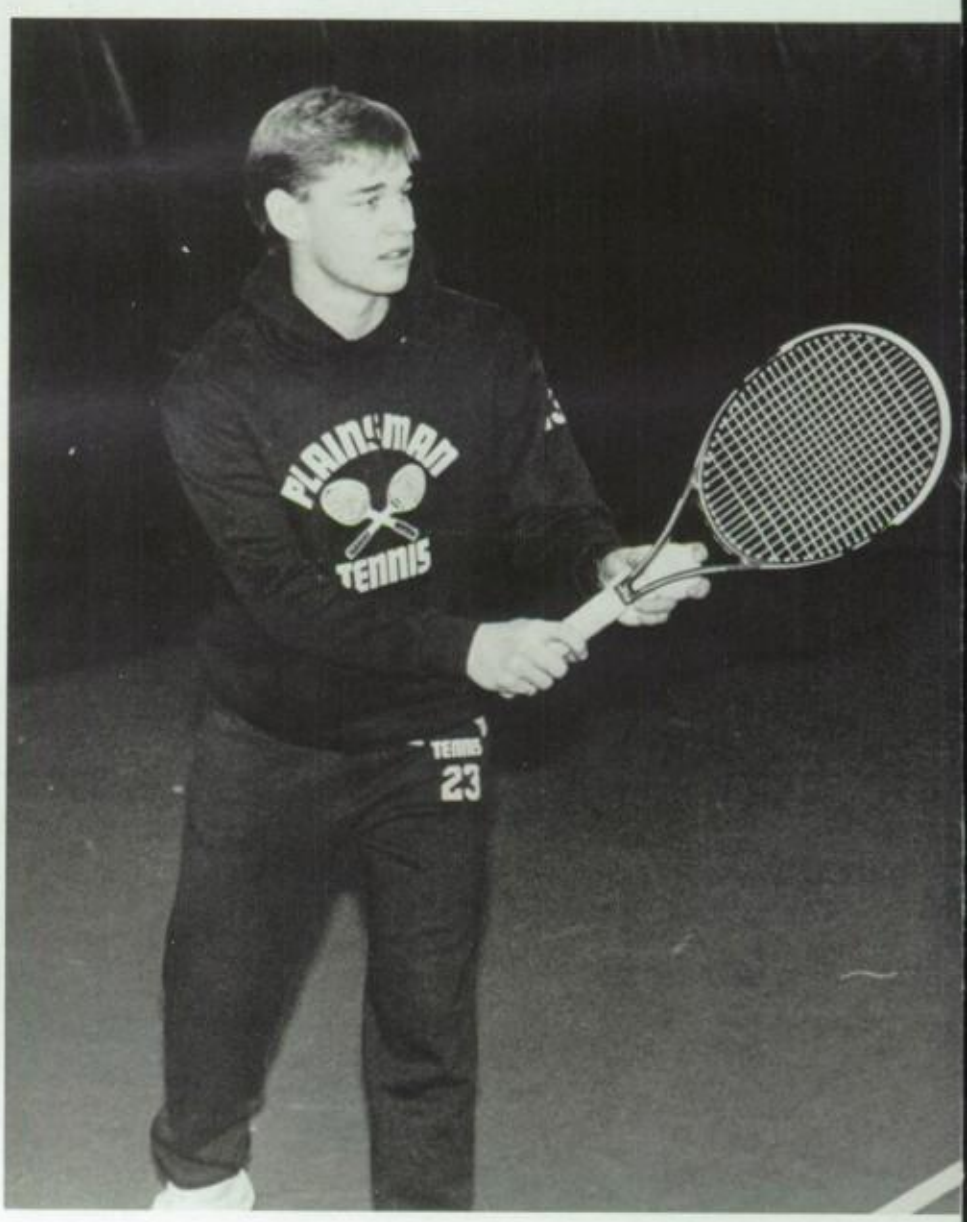
When describing this year's tennis teams, one might be reminded of the T.V. series The Young Ones. The future of Enid High tennis seems very bright for the next few years as there are a total of thirteen Sophomores and Freshmen vying for top spots on the boys and girls teams. The top six girls this year were all Sophomores and Freshmen and according to their coach Darryl Herndon they have the potential of capturing a couple of state titles before they leave the program. Much like the girls team the boys were led by Sophomores and Freshmen with Jay Owens and Johnny Erdner making strong contributions as the only Seniors. Much like the girls team the boys have the potential at winning a state championship before they are finished.





TOP ROW: Coach D. Herndon, B. Lambertz, T. Fields, C. Watts, J. Marler, C. Dodd, D. Dunham, J. Owens, T. George, M. Burdick, Asst. Coach R. McClendon, SECOND ROW: K. Litton, H. Ring, R. Boyle, J. Erdner, Mason Green, Matt Green, J. Long, T. Morehart, T. Green, L. McCune, BOTTOM ROW: S. Baker, Amy Fry, M. Dense, D. Smith, R. Rush, S. Athey, T. Miller, D. Costello, Anne Fry.

"We, the seniors of '88, are the last to have experienced the thrill of a state championship. The 1988 baseball season became a major undertaking for the coaches and players. Our season started out slowly as expected, but through many hours of practice and hard work, we gradually produced a team that could contend with our mid-state rivals. Although our ultimate goal of a second state championship fell short, the friends and the fans we made will always live forever in our memories." — Dustin Weber, Sr. '88

Why do you spend much time practicing and what are your rewards?

- BELOW: "Swimming has given me pride in representing Enid High School. Being captain of the girls' team has given me responsibilities beyond competing in the water. Motivation of other team members is important because involvement in this sport is mental as well as physical. The early morning practices, sore muscles, and other hardships are forgotten when goals such as participating in the state meet and being named 'All-State Swimmer' are reached." — Candice Autry, Sr. '88
- BOTTOM: "I practice so I will be completely prepared for competition. Winning a race or a medal is the ultimate benefit. However, knowing I am in top physical condition and that I've run the best is also a rewarding experience." — Chris Walker, Sr. '88
- BOTTOM RIGHT: "I spend my time wrestling so that I can become better and get into good physical condition. It takes a lot to be a wrestler, even though a lot of people think it's boring and a sissy sport. The rewards I've gained are staying in good physical condition and trying to become a success in what I do." — Troy Campbell, Sr. '88

Long hours, sacrifice, well worth it, say EHS athletes.

Approximately two and a half hours a day, five days a week, and one or two evenings a weekend is spent practicing for in most instances no more than an hour of actual competition. Why? For most it is the actual competition. It is obvious by watching the Plainsmen practice that the desire to represent their school proudly burns deep within them. Most frequently their reward is simply personal satisfaction in the achievement of a personal best time or performance.

In retrospect, the hours spent practicing seem almost insurmountable to a senior who has graduated from any of the athletic programs, yet ironically the rewards gained seldom lie in the medals and trophies that adorn his walls. The fruits of his labor are in his memories, his friendships, and his experiences. Long after the medals have rusted and the moments of glory have subsided to normalcy, the memories and friendship are still very much alive. The long hours fade to minutes, then seconds as the realization of its end draws closer. At its end it is obvious that the rewards do not come from the competition, but from all the practice. These are the times we will always remember.

plainsman ambassadors

Lisa Long, captain of Enid High's Belles of the Plains, is another example of an outstanding Plainsman. During the month of June, Lisa attended the National Cheerleaders Association Superstar Drill Team Camp at Oklahoma University. Out of four hundred talented girls, only fifteen qualified to go to Hawaii and perform in the Aloha Bowl on Christmas day. They were judged on their precision, knowledge of a routine, maintaining a smile, and coordination to dance. December 18, Lisa boarded the plane to Honolulu where she would spend ten days practicing, performing, shopping, and tanning on the beach. The girls performed a skirt routine and a pom-pom routine in the Pregame show, and at half time they performed a hoop routine. Christmas Eve night the girls marched in the Aloha Bowl parade along Waikiki Beach. On the final night of practice, Lisa was one out of ten girls to receive the one hundred percent effort award. Congratulations Lisa, we're proud of you!

After a 32 hour flight it was hard to tell which was more mind-boggling: cars driving on the left side of the street or people using such a different dialect. I had eleven days to tour Australia before the Sixteenth World Boy Scout Jamboree began.

The first city I toured was Melbourne. While there I saw a football game Australian style and Melbourne University. Outside of Sydney while exploring the Outback, I saw such exotic animals as wombats, koalas, kangaroos, dingos, emus, sharks, and crocodiles. Some of the interesting places in Sydney were the Opera House and Hard Rock Cafe, which featured memorabilia from Australian bands such as "INXS" and "Men at Work."

Once the jamboree started there were many things to do: such as exploring caves, rappelling off a sixty foot cliff face, and going on the outback waterslide. The jamboree was attended by 16,000 boy scouts from 97 countries speaking 56 languages.

William North

I had been studying French for three years when I was allowed the opportunity to spend time in France. I filled out an application and was selected along with seventeen other students from Oklahoma to spend a month abroad living with a family. The most difficult adaptation was, of course, the language. It took about two and a half weeks for me to catch on because they speak so rapidly. My family helped a lot in that they never spoke to me in English, though most of them were capable. While in France I spent a week at the beach, a week in the country, and the other two weeks I spent in the city where I saw numerous art museums and cathedrals. I think that I learned more in that month than I ever have, and I'll have to say that learning has never been more fun.

...the... enid high school survival game

Mom has to give you a ride to school, everyone is watching as she says, "See you at 3:30, have a good day." Very embarrassing, back one space.

You finally get your braces off, good for you.

You get to go out on a date, but your mom has to drive, don't you wish you could?

You flunk your driver's ed test for the third time, not good, back three spaces.

You're making new friends and starting to go in your own direction, go forward 2 spaces.

You show up at a senior party — BIG mistake. Go back to start.

You've been noticed by an upperclassman of the opposite sex, forward two spaces.

You finally get to go to high school parties.

Lost in the halls for the first week, lose a turn.

Easy academic schedule, forward two spaces.

OOPS! You're mistaken for a sophomore, back two spaces.

JUNIOR YEAR

You finally made it to your Junior year!! congratulations.

Can't figure out VICTORY cheer at assemblies, c'mon sophs it's not that hard.

You show up at a dance on time, Mom picks you up early, back two spaces.

You're finally driving, forward two spaces.

Your classes are getting harder and at the same time you're beginning to realize that grades are more important.

You get to play on varsity team.

SENIOR YEAR

This game represents what could be a typical three years at Enid High School. We can all identify with the set backs and the stress, but at the same time we can also remember the good times, and when we look back on everything, those memories, good and bad, make it all worth while. As you make your way through the game you can remember the embarrassing moments of sophomorehood, the stress of your junior year, and the great times of being a senior.

Still not excused on class day. Lose one turn.

You can have "friends" (not dates) of the opposite sex.

Sophomore gets a crush on you . . . ego boost, forward two spaces.

Learning that teachers can be cool.

You're still not a senior, go back five spaces.

You get to wave at sophomores in assemblies.

Overindulging at a party and making a fool of yourself, go back two spaces.

Senior pictures, announcements, cap and gown measurements . . . what a hassle.

The middle of January rolls around and you still don't know where you're going to college, back three spaces.

College application essays are a drag.

You're starting to figure out how to skip classes and not get "busted," forward two spaces.

SENIORITIS sets in.

You have "the system" down pat.

Graduation rehearsals are boring, back two.

No curfew!

Saying "good-bye"

SAT
Need we say more?

Teachers become your friends, you begin to figure out that they're on your side.

May Fete, the final walk around the pond.

Graduation, forward one.

You've figured out the VICTORY cheer.

Relationships with friends are at an all time high, forward one.

Social life cuts off study time . . . grades begin to plunge, back three.

Senior parties are great, forward two.

DIPLOMA

IMAGES OF ECHOS

"Seniors please pass to the auditorium" . . . "Hey, who are you going to lunch with?" . . . "He actually smiled at me in the hall" . . . "Guess who called me last night?" . . . "Did you get your algebra finished?" . . . "Hurry! I can't be late, it's my third tardy!" . . . "No note, no change" . . . "Did you hear about . . ." . . . "Dude, that's so uncool" . . . "Did you study for that Psych test?" . . . "What's goin' on this weekend?" . . . "This class is so boring" . . . "Do you have a date to the prom?" . . . "Someday we'll look back on this and laugh" . . . "Can you believe that we're finally graduating?" . . . "Thanks for being there."
